WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1869.

North and South.

With that torpid, frigid spirit which above all other marks distinguishes the character of the New York World as a Democratic organ, it is engaged in the work of dragooning the South into rejecting the constitutions embodying the fifteenth amendment. It appeals to Southern Democrats not to abandon the North to the disagreeable condition of negro suffrage, and consequent sure Democratic defeat in all the doubtful States. It knows that New York, with an honest impartial vote, is surely against them, and, no matter how much the Southern Democrats have suffered in time gone by from following the advice of the knock-kneed and shiftish Democrats of the North, the World coolly calls upon them once more to sacrifice their peace and their vital material interests to gratify the inordinate political thirst of the men who have so encouraged them in to tribulation and danger, only to abandon them to their fate. In other words, the think who has participated in all the hurglarious councils of the gang, more lucky in not having been caught in now calling upon his cobadjutors who have been caught, tried, convicted, and sentenced, not to turn State's evidence lest the thieves who are still at large should find their precious liberties abridged. This effrontery might well astonish those less familiar than we with the unfeeling infamy of the Seymour-Wood-Pendleton leaders for the past few years. Success is the extent of their morality, and to that end the party juggernaut may roll over friend and foe mercilessly alike. This spirit dogged on the secessionists to rebellion, and when never lifted a hand to aid its victims. It encouraged its friends to hope and fight against hope, by falsifying the real condition of the government; it told them to resist reconstruction because they could back them up at the polls, when they knew better. It encouraged the South to cling to slavery whom it knew well enough that institution was only useful to the Democratic party; and, finally, it is now encouraging the South to stir up the embers of rebellion anew, solely to perpetuate the reign of Tammany in New York. In short, the rebellion, the nation al Democracy, and every element that enters into their political action, has been made to play into the hands of a little ring of fugleman who circulate about Tammany and attempt to rule the country by the turning of a screw.

But some of the leaders of the South have had enough of this deceptive play; they are not disposed longer to submit their hands to the fiery ordeal to furnish chestnuts with which to tickle the palates of the moguls who are bloating upon the riches of New York patronage. They have shown themselves willing to fight in almost any cause except the right; but no longer for the perpetuation of a cruel and consolidated oligarchy. Many of the old secessionists of Mississippi rebuke this sordid spirit in the Democratic party of the North, and say, in the language of that old pro-slavery Democrat, Albert G. Brown, "We accept the Fifteenth Amendment. We plead our relatives one to another, disregarding color and former political opinions, to deal justly by all men, and to secure perfect equality of civil and political rights to every one before the law." In Virginia the feeling of scorn for this spirit of arrogant dictation of the World and the Hoffman ringmasters, is still more apparent. The Richmond Whig says:

"(the World) adheres to the ungenerous idea that we ought to discard all thought of ourselves, and sacrifice our most vital interests in order to preserve to the North from the XVth Amendment. It makes the mistake, too, of supposing that we are all Democratic partizans of the Bourbon stripe, stone-blind to all the changes that have been wrought by the great and sweeping revolution, and doggedly bent upon sacrificing all of our material interests to an unreasonable spite. The World has yet to learn that, with the exception of a handful of fogies, we have ceased to be partizans. We are struggling for life and planning for a prosperous future, and will have no entangling party alliances. It will be time enough to form such alliances when our State is restored to its place in the Union. Until that shall be accomplished, we can scarcely be said to have a political existence. In the eagerness to indulge us to sacrifice all the world can hope for in the future, in order that we may be relieved from negro suffrage (already passed upon us), it almost insults us by its disrespectful and unjust attitude to the gentleman we are supporting for Governor.

We furthermore say to the World that it gives us but little credit for sagacity if it supposes that we intend to sacrifice all in the present and all in the future merely to save it from the XVth Amendment."

These are significant words from such a source. They indicate that the Democratic leaders of the South are in advance of their comrades in the North. They indicate that but for the wicked misrepresentations of the Northern Democratic newspapers the South long since would have found peace and would have deserved the most charitable consideration of the country. More than all, they indicate that the real abettors of the Southern political murders are the Democratic leaders of the North; that the responsibility for the lawlessness and cruelty of the Ku Klux Klan is upon them; that all these inconsistencies in Southern society are fanned into life as indirectly the chief sustenance of the Tammany supremacy in New York and New Jersey.

These facts are so clearly apparent that none can fail to heed them. In view of the position of the leading Southern Democrats, the act of the World in firing the Southern ers wantonly to resist reconstruction upon peaceable terms, must be construed as at once a confession of guilt and of weakness—of guilt in that the Democratic party is founded in human wrongs; of weakness, in that with a fair, impartial, honest ballot, it would not retain a foothold in the country. All its virulent declamation about wrongs and corruption in its opponents is only so much dust to blind the popular eye to the unprecedented depravity of the political party which has fostered so long upon the country's ills.

In the official and common sense settlement of the right hour question by the President, the Democracy lose another issue which has been unjustly ridden by them for some time. It will be remembered that in Connecticut and some other States, a year ago, they made very fair but false professions to the laboring men of this point, and now it happens that the Republicans come in and settle it without flourish. So it is upon all questions. Democratic leaders—Republicanism acts for the rights of the people.

We await anxiously the next issue these gentlemen will make for us to bother us.

The Irish Republican Association of Washington is setting its countrymen a good example. Its members discard the foolish prejudice against color, which holds no longer sways as a thread-bare Democratic scare-crow. They have previously taken strong and decided ground in favor of equality among whites and blacks in labor. They now favor the appointment of colored men upon the police and in other places where they are competent. Despite the efforts of the Democratic party of America to oppress and persecute the American Democracy—the industrious laborers and artizans—they are doomed to disappointment for the people believe in justice, and more will toil.

The Argus utters a wail over the fact that one of Fred Douglass' sons has received an appointment in Washington, adding "while lots of poor white clerks are being discharged." We would remind the Argus that Grant's determination has always been to turn out all the poor rascals in the departments. The great trouble is that your friends and Johnson's parasites were very poor white trash.

The Manlius Union says that "the Democrats are very quiet—almost asleep. The people have been trying to wake them for these many years, but alas it is the sleep of death. The Union has one eye almost open for it intimates that the Democratic candidate should be selected not for what he has been, but for what he is to be. A suggestion upon this point may aid the unsophisticated Democrats of Manlius. We know many a Democrat who, if you can guarantee him the election, would gladly pledge according to order, what he is to be. We believe if there is one man more than another careless of what he is to be" politically or generally, he is what may be called the average Democrat.

A negro leases the late Jeff. Davis plantation below Vicksburg for $6,000 a year.

We find this in the Boston Post—a newspaper which all along has protested that a man with a black skin is not capable of performing the duties of managing ordinary business. Facts practically illustrated are great teachers, and they prove that the colored men are not the thickest skulled beings in the world, but that the greatest achievement of truth is to penetrate the caverns of a Democratic skull.

The National House of Representatives at present contains 221 members. Two-thirds of the States not having yet been admitted to representation, and Alabama not having yet chosen her members. Of the number there are 150 lawyers, good, bad and indifferent; 14 farmers; 9 merchants; 8 manufacturers; 7 bankers; 6 editors; 5 general business men—which means nothing; 3 clergymen; 2 planters; 2 real estate agents; 2 physicians; 2 tumbermen; 2 railroad managers; 1 coal operator; 1 printer, poor fellow; and 1 Sun Butler!

Mr. John A. Poor of Portland, now in Chicago in the interest of the new Trans-Continental Railway, left before the business men of that city at the close of Thursday afternoon, the plan for a direct line of railway from Chicago to Portland. The immediate object was to induce the Chicago Board of Trade to take action in favor of the above line with a view to encourage the preparation in Portland of facilities for the receipt, distribution and shipment of merchandise to and from Chicago. The Tribune is enthusiastic over the new route to Europe, and unfortunately no doubt that the proposed action would be taken.

MR. BOUTWELL'S FINANCIAL POLICY.—The correspondent of The Advertiser sends a number of National Banknotes called on Secretary Boutwell Monday to argue against a reduction of the number of designated depositories. They hold that the placing of all deposits in any city with a single bank would give it unfair advantages over all the rest, and aside from the direct value of the deposits to such bank, which they estimate as a minimum at four per cent on the average, the government balances in any bank could build itself up at the expense of the others. The Secretary held that none of the banks could claim deposits as a right, and in determining upon the institutions which should have them, he had only to consult the convenience of the government and the means of simplifying the transactions of the Treasury. He thought greater promptness could be attained by doing business with a single bank than with several. He saw no reason for changing his decision to reduce the number of depositories, but he would be careful that a sufficient number of banks were selected to do all the government business at any given point without delay. The Secretary of the Treasury has given orders for the purchase of the million bonds during the coming week. Official figures at the Treasury Department show that the importations for the months of March and April were greater than for the corresponding months of any previous year.

The Washington correspondence of the New York Sun of Saturday contains the following paragraph in regard to Secretary Boutwell's gold sales:

"Secretary Boutwell last night, on looking over his daily reports from the Sub-Treasury, found that his weekly sales of gold were not reducing his surplus. On the 3d of May there was in the Treasury one hundred and one millions, of which eighty-four millions belong to the Treasury. His discounting of July interest and sales were not sufficient to keep this amount from running up on him, and after his sales yesterday he had left $111,000,000, of which $80,000,000 belonged to the Government. True there has been a gain of five millions in less than three weeks, and again in the same time of gold deposits of four millions. This order to sell two millions next week was issued today, but no corresponding order was given to buy an extra million of bonds. The Secretary has not concluded what he will do with the extra amount of currency which this sale brings into the Treasury. His present arrangements will secure all the needs for the purchase of sinking fund bonds up to June 30, the close of the present fiscal year. He has been pressed to buy up three per cents., but has not yet decided what to do about it. He does not anticipate any difficulty in getting rid of his surplus of gold back at any time, but he does not intend to allow gold to accumulate any further upon him in the Treasury, and he will regulate his sales in future by his receipts, as he does not regard the price put upon the metal in Wall street as any criterion of its value, nor will it guide him in his sales; but he does not intend to allow the Treasury to be used to hoard gold unnecessarily."

CONFISCATION IN CUBA.—The Havana correspondent of the New York Times has the following in regard to confiscation in Cuba:

New York houses will be heavy sufferers by these continued confiscations, owing to the report current here that some have made heavy cash loans and advances to wealthy Cubans, who did not initiate the example of the Aldamas and others in placing some of their surplus funds with some English or American banks. Although in reality the possessors of plantations and other property, many are now, in consequence of the confiscation act, in straightened circumstances, their supplies being out of for sometime. The slaveholders at the Cuban mass meeting, if the United States, or the presence of the ladies at some theater, appears to furnish, in some instances, humorous cause for contemplation. Although other countries have during revolutionary times resorted to confiscation as a means of crippling the resources of the enemy, and punishing such as took an active part in war, it was not done under the same idea the Spaniards labor under, namely: that Cuba and its wealth belong not only to Spain but to the Spaniards. Cuba unquestionably is a Spanish province, but the Spaniards of the day present the theory that Cuba with all its wealth belongs to the Spaniards by right of conquest. But if the ancient Spaniards were the persons who conquered the island, are not their children and descendants entitled to the land, and to the right of administering its affairs? The Cubans are the descendants of those who conquered Cuba and not the emigrants who come to Cuba voluntarily or by lot. The son of a negro, born on the soil ought to have equal rights with the son of a white man. Until such equality is acknowledged by Cubans and Spaniards, and put in force, neither party ought to enjoy the right of governing the Island, which is only ruled by the right of mere strength. The Spaniards rule now; whether the Cubans will ever rule is still a matter of doubt.

The Gubernatorial Nomination.

To the Editor of the Daily Whig:

The Gubernatorial canvass in the State is becoming general and quite animated and it is evident the mass of the people are getting interested in the question. The objective point seems to be, what is or will be the position of the temperance men of the State as regard to the matter? Will they go into the caucuses and party conventions as here-to-fore? Will they support the nominations without regard to the fitness of the nominee, or will they form a third party and nominate a separate candidate? With reference to these points I think I hazard nothing in asserting:

1st. They will not, as an organization, go into the party caucuses or conventions and attempt to influence the selection of delegates or the nomination of a candidate for Governor.

2d. They will not consider themselves bound to support the nominee of the Democratic convention.

3d. If the Republicans persist in nominating an anti-temperance man, the temperance men will nominate a candidate for Governor at their forthcoming convention in Portland, and thus form a third political party in Maine.

It is well for us as temperance men and as Republicans to understand this matter just as it is and look it square in the face. It is no use to shut our eyes to the fact and day to dismiss the subject with a sneer, as some prominent politicians are in the habit of doing. Judging from the past they presume the temperance men will still be coaxed on, driven or led to the polls. They are mistaken. There is one prominent feature in this new issue that it is a determination to go straight forward in the path of right and in support of principle, without regard to the effect upon existing political structures.

I have always been one of those who have believed that no occasion would occur for the nomination of a candidate of the temperance men, have believed that a nomination outright would be made at Bangor, but I must confess the Chamberlain correspondence and the position taken by many leading Republican papers in the State in attempting to forestall the action of the convention, has placed the matter in a different light. Still I hope for the best. I cannot see why an arrangement may not be effected, nor why the Republican leaders should persist in becoming their own executioners. What reason, in common sense, can be given why a true Republican and temperance man, who would be entirely satisfactory and acceptable to all, may not be the nomination at Bangor. Is there any? I can not see any, and I do not yet really believe that convention will, act, be unwisely and injudiciously as to make a nomination which shall alienate the temperance portion of the Governor, and eventually destroy the party in the State.

The whole responsibility then rests with the Republican party and upon their convention to be held at Bangor. If a true temperance man is put in nomination—[illegible] Hon. E. Knowlton, Hon. Sidney Perham, Hon. Lot M. Morrill, and many others whom I could name, men who are true, sound Republicans—then undoubtedly the action of the temperance convention at Portland would be simply to approve that nomination. But if the convention persists in nominating Gov. Chamberlain or any other man in whom the temperance men have no confidence, and if the Republicans are unwilling to make enforced prohibition a prominent plank in their platform, thus rendering party nomination a foregone conclusion.

The temperance men make no threats and no contracts. They simply present the facts fairly, squarely and honestly. Gentlemen politicians leaders of the Republican party upon you rests the entire responsibility of the country except the actual duties of the election. You will go into the convention with your eyes open and fully understanding the position. We shall await your action with anxiety, for upon it depends the well being of the community to a great extent, many years.

QUIDAM.

The brilliant meteor of Thursday evening was seen throughout New England and New York. Its light is said to have been greater than that of the brightest moonlight, its distance from the earth is estimated at fifty miles. It was visible for about 25 seconds.

CABLE NEWS

Paris, May 25—The excitement over the elections is very great, and the boulevards are crowded with people anxious to hear the results. Further returns announce the election of eight official candidates, three independent, two democrats and two liberal. In addition to those reported this morning M. M. Raspail, Favre and Dorian, are elected.

London, May 25. The Times this morning, in an editorial on the French elections, says the chief cities repudiate the idea of the Empire, and a revival of political activity will result from a verdict which condemns personal government. The restoration of parliamentary government may conciliate the existing dynasty. By such means only can the Emperor expect to mitigate the opposition which has not yet become anti-dynastic.

Gen. Ripley, formerly of the Confederate army, has passed through bankruptcy. His liabilities are fixed at $50,000 and his assets at $37,000.

Cork, May 25. Parties have been discovered here secretly dealing with arms by night, and three men have been arrested.

Cyrus W. Field has arrived to take the steamer from Queenstown for New York.

Paris, May 25—9 P. M. The returns of 62 more complete elections have been received, and show the following results: 38 liberal candidates elected, 48 independent, 1 opposition, 8. It is now considered probable that the full returns will show a large majority for the government than was anticipated.

The feeling on the Bourse at the close of the day was confident.

Paris, May 25—midnight. All the returns received up to this hour show that 107 official and 26 opposition members have been elected. The elections in 68 districts remain undecided.

The Monituer has a report that France and Italy have completed an arrangement for the evacuation of Rome by the French troops in September.

Vienna, May 25. Hon. John Jay, American Minister, has arrived in this city.

Florence, May 26. The Austrian envoy, Thorn, while walking with Col. Grenville, was killed by an assassin, and Grenville was wounded. The crime is said to have been prompted by motives of private revenge, and Col. Grenville was intended victim.

The Insurrection in Cuba

HAVANA, May 24.

Advices from Santiago de Cuba of the 19th inst. give the following account of affair with the filibusters in the Bay of Nipe, according to the reports of the Spanish themselves:

It is supposed that the expedition left from the steamer Perit. The Spanish troops surprised the landing party, attacking and taking their position with 7 guns and a stock of provisions by 2 O'clock. The filibusters, to the number of 1,200, recaptured their position and guns, and left the bay. They fired upon the Spanish steamer Marsella, putting two shots through her hull. The gunboat, African arrived on the shore but soon left for Nuevitas to bring reinforcements.

Excitement at Nuevitas was intense. A steamer had been dispatched to communicate with the authorities at Havana.

Steamer Perit arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, on the 18th instant, where she was quarantined, because she had touched at Cuba.

HAVANA, May 25.

Capt. Gen. Dulce has issued a decree ordering the military authorities in the specific jurisdictions to sieze all horses to prevent their falling into the hands of the rebels. The owners are to be paid for their animals which are to be used in the government service.

The steamer Perit arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, on the 15th inst after landing expedition in the Bay of Nipe. She returns to New York in a few days.

Gen Anderson Sails for Europe—The Steamer Quaker City Seized by U S Authorities.

NEW YORK, May 25.

Gen. Robert Anderson and family sailed today in the steamer Hammonia for Europe.

The Spanish Consul in this city this afternoon filed a libel in the United States District Court against the steamer Quaker City, now called the Columbia, on the grounds that she was intended to violate neutrality laws by giving aid to the Cuban insurgents. Judge Blatchford granted the necessary order, and United States Marshal Bates seized the vessel.

NEW YORK, May 25.

The steamer Quaker City is claimed to be under British protection, and as sailing has have gotten a clearance previous to the seizure through the British Consulate. It is also said she was chartered to carry a cargo of flour to Kingston, Jamaica, by Mr. McAndrew, a British merchant in this city.

—The Maine Farmer thinks small birds are on the decrease in this State, and that more stringent laws in regard to killing birds and destroying their nests are needed.

—Detective Sargent of Boston, assisted by City Marshal Hicks of Biddeford, arrested James Wayland in Dover, New Hampshire, Friday, for setting fire to the house of Philip Tasman of Saco, on the night of April 24th last. He will be taken to Saco for trial. There have been a large number of incendiary fires in Saco and Biddeford, and it is hoped this arrest may put an end to them.

—The Lewiston Journal says that in 1868 Mrs. Thomas McLellan, living on Plum street, lost a gold ring in the garden, of peculiar make. The great fire of 1866 swept over the grounds and destroyed the house. Last Monday Mrs. O'Leary, who lived in the house at the time the ring was lost, found it, unhurt and shining brightly.

—The Parkerian correspondent of the Portland Daily Observer says:—"Several valuable horses have died suddenly and mysteriously in that vicinity, within a week. I say mysteriously because the symptoms are entirely unlike anything which I have ever seen before. They are attended with trembling, inability to move the legs, and breathing, and are apparently in considerable pain, though not active pain."

—The Lewiston Journal is gratified to learn that Hon. W. W. Holden, Governor of North Carolina, will be present at the Bates College Commencement, June 30th. He will be accompanied by Col. Cobb, formerly of that city but now of the North Carolina Senate, and Gen. Eden of Wilmington, late of Gen. Kilpatrick's staff, and formerly of this State. Gov. Holden is one of the most intrepid Union men of the South, and his services are entitled to generous recognition. General Eden entered the service in the First Maine Cavalry as Orderly Sergeant of the Bangor Company, and was rapidly promoted for gallantry.

—The Lewiston Journal tells of a dog owned by an Irishman of that town that furnishes the family with wood; being sent out when a good piece drift wood is floating by and, seizing it in his teeth brings it to shore. We know of a dog belonging to a farmer out in Dedham, that always goes to the pasture when it comes night and drives home the cows. He also watches the sheep and keeps them where they belong. We don't know whether he can take down and put up the bars, but aside from this he is in every respect as good as a man to drive the cattle to and from pasture.

THE PERSIAN PRISONERS. The State Department had received two dispatches from Mr. Beverly Johnson in regard to the course which the English government intend to pursue regarding Persian prisoners. It will be remembered that the case of Wm. G. Halpine and others was submitted to President Grant, through Judge Carter of Cincinnati, acting in behalf of a mass meeting held in that city. The President at once sent dispatches to Mr. Johnson and directed him to try and secure the release of the prisoners. Mr. Johnson immediately laid the matter before the English government, and after considerable delay received in reply a communication containing a list of about twenty prisoners whom the government did not purpose to release under any circumstances. Among these were Halpine, Cafferty, Shaw and Burke. Subsequently Mr. Johnson made a second attempt and received a second answer reiterating the determination of the English government to make no more releases of Persian prisoners. In closing his dispatch to Mr. Fish conveying this last information, Mr. Johnson expressed the hope that this action would be reversed at no distant day, and a part of the prisoners at least would be released. For the present, however, the State Department sees no ground to expect that any of the Fenian prisoners, whose cases have been under consideration, will be set at liberty.

Whig & Courier

Lights and Shadows of Western Life.—A Faithful Picture, by a Resident.

"Sucker."

16. Q. Whilst the commodities of rents, board, grain, hay, potatoes, horses, clothing, glass, nails, salt, iron, cows, oxen, sheep, hogs, live stock, land, also, of household furniture, such as dining tables, bureaus, bedsteads, chairs, common articles of this kind much dearer than out East?

A. In answer to question 16, I would say that from the best information I can get, the prices are, about as follows: Rents, $3,00 $6,00. 87,1-2c. from $1 to $1,50c, about $50; $8, 12 1-2c, $75. 1 to $2 to $3,00. Porter Clay asks $10 for his farm, and does Pat Henderson, $—. 371—Common articles of this kind much higher than in the East.

17. Q. I suppose that many of your common traders purchase their goods in Chicago, Alton, St. Louis, and other towns on the Western waters; but that a wholesale dealer extensively purchases in the Atlantic cities. If in the affirmative, what route do they transport their goods home, and send off their produce? I think it is usually coupled in a Steamboat passage from New Orleans to St. Louis, or Rock Island? Does the latter proceed to the latter places—or is it a lighter draft required? What are the prices of freight per ton, or 100 lbs. in the various stages of water?

A. Somedo our merchants purchase their goods in the East, and they are large, others here by the lake and canals, though few bring the goods by way last summer by the Ohio river, on account of the low stages of water during the summer months of the year. However, I do not think, a proper test, as the water was very low and had a heap of bad luck, and many have lost quite a heap of money. Goods are brought here mostly from Chicago to St. Louis, which is the point I am engaged on the way. The latter part of the same day Taggart & Lamb had not yet got home, although they have been at home two weeks. See page 2d sec. But it is somewhat uncertain.

18. Q. Are the Lead, Iron and general manufacturing regions in the vicinity of the Mississippi, Illinois and Rock River regions generally in a thriving and progressing condition, or has a general depression in the Atlantic States affected you and reduced the prices of your crops? The Pork, Grain and Lead business, I take to be pretty extensive and successful in the old and more populous parts of the country? Does the West, or country Illinois, afford many articles for trade, both on a large and small scale; and are the exchanges in them principally in cash or the produce of the country; and if the latter, is there a cash and also a barter price? Is there much credit given in the ordinary transactions of business, and what are the usual credit, and can confidence be safely reposed in the fidelity and punctuality of the debtor? In case of refusal to pay, what are the legal and usual means of enforcing payments—is the body liable to arrest for debt?

A. The lead, corn, tiles, and manufacturing parts of the country are healthy, except where it is affected by the pork, grain, and other stock business. It pretty extensively carried on in the most populous parts of the country. The States does afford ample facilities for trade both on large and small scales; more especially on a small scale; and as I said before, there is no cash in the country, and never proposed to pay for anything we buy on tick. It being a violation of the contract to pay our debts, besides being inconvenient. The usual credit given is twelve months, then called 6 months more, and then sued, and in the meantime, the debtor elopes to Iowa, Texas, or Oregon; so you see that this is a promising country, and confidence can safely be confided in the debtor, being confident that you will never collect what you have once trust out. By means of obliterating and the illiberality of the body of revised laws of 1833, History of Baron Trenck, and also of Jack the Giant Killer.

19. Q. Would a Millinery, Dress-making and Fancy Goods Shop, or a Clothing, Hat and Shoe Store; in which a gentleman could purchased nearly every article of human dress, from a hat to a pair of boots, be likely to succeed in your city or any other pleasant village within your knowledge; or do you trade in single all kinds of goods in one store, so as to render his success doubtful?

A. I think a milliner would do a fine business here, as most of the milliners in this country that I most probable to be profuse of their smiles and favors to the young men, and, our ladies God bless them) are sadly in want of the little fixings made by milliners. The same thing may be said of the dress-making business. As for the clothing boot, hat, shoe, and variety store, I would not be prejudiced. I myself would fit out with one or more of the above (provided I could get them on credit), and have no doubt but what every loafer in town would do the same thing, if they thought they would never have to pay for them. And I know many places in this country where you could open in the same manner, provided you do business as you would have to do in this place. I am sorry to say that it is true our traders do mix and mingle all kinds of goods in one store, from soft soap to Queen Victoria's blond wife.

20. Q. By reference to the map I see that Carolton is 36 miles from this place, and that it is the county seat of Green county, and that the inhabitants are a most wortl set of sinners, and lovers of buckwheat cakes and honey, and also partridges, milk punch, and grog in any shape. And as for Hamburg, Gilford and Milton, there is but one house in three places, and that is in Hamburg, and inhabited by ghosts and witches. Milton has been entirely washed away by the Mississippi, and the population has been washed away by whiskey. And as for Gilford, it is that class of towns now extinct, which makes a great show in the history and on the maps of their country, but, like Babylon the great of classic times, a spot where it once stood is now unknown,—but it is thought they were very moral people, as they are of that genus and species called ducks, geese, sand-hills, cranes, and tadpoles. All I know of Alton is that the Penitentiary is located there, and also four meeting houses, and that it will require a large man exceedingly to walk over the town, it being on a hill, very much up and down.

21. Q. Where do publishers of newspapers in Illinois and Iowa purchase their printing establishments, and their stocks of paper, and what wages do they generally give their journeymen? Are the ramage or wooden presses much used? Is there not great difficulty in collecting newspaper bills? What number of subscribers do Village papers generally obtain?

A. Publishers of newspapers do not purchase their printing materials—they are carried on entirely by subscription. They give their journeymen their board, and furnish them with paper. All sorts of presses are used here, but the most common kind are cider presses. There is a great difficulty in collecting newspaper bills, the much as the thing is never attempted, it being morally impossible to do. Some papers have a large and others a smaller subscription list. For further particulars and information on this subject I must respectfully refer you to Mr. J. G. Edwards, of the Hawkeye, at Burlington, Iowa. I will, however, here add that the most powerful and common presses that are used here are the potash bies and sheriffs who understand both the wooden Ramage and all other kinds of presses, in the course of their operations.

22. Q. What newspapers are published in Illinois, north of Peoria, except those in Ottawa, Chicago and Galena—what their character and location; and are they well supported—and if not, what is the reason? What town in Northern Illinois or Iowa, as far as your knowledge extends, presents the best opening for a central, interesting family newspaper, which would be conducted with industry and ability, particularly devoted to the advancement of that section of country, and to the great and prominent interests of agriculture generally. Is there any paper published on Rock River; or upon the Mississippi, between Quincy and Galena, excepting at Stephenson, and at Burlington and Davenport, in Iowa—is one not panywanted in that region?

A. As to question 22d, I am profoundly ignorant as yourself. I think you could ascertain more fully by personal examination.

23. Q. What number of traders, and professional men, such as lawyers, physicians, and editors, does Galesville or any other of the towns or cities in the 3d and 20th interrogatories, contain so far as you know—and what is their general reputation for talents, uprightness and efficiency of character? and would another lawyer or editor of correct principles and habits, who had both the power and disposition to do his profession and public useful to the community, be well received, and be likely to succeed, and what town within your knowledge presents the best opening for one of either profession?

A. Every man in this country is a trader. I have known two men to make ten thousand dollars each by swapping lots; the lots in both places being not more than 20 feet, nor less than 10 feet under water. We have 97 doctors, 68 lawyers, one and a half of an editor, to this place and their characters are very much diversified. Lamborn is the best, Wilson's study, McConnel is a politician, Billy Brown does not stay at home, McCune is the most attentive. John Harding stutters, and is also a politician, Houghton and Billy Warren do not practice, and McDougall, Yates, Smith, Sargent and Dunsburg have just come here, are sour, and do not practice much. Douglass and Douglass have left here. Seymour has not yet procured his license, and Thomas is appointed Judge, and I do sincerely and candidly think that there is no opening for a smart, upright and talented lawyer, and do not know of a place in all creation except the city of ——— in Central Africa that now presents so great an opening as this place, for such an individual as yourself.

24. Q. Do not the soil, climate, progress of settlement, and the other facilities for business, in Iowa and Wisconsin present quite as many inducements to immigrants, as those of the State of Illinois?

A. In answer to question 24th I can say, emphatically, that they do not. Wisconsin and Iowa, are both filled up with the scum of creation, and no decent man would be tempted to live in either country, all the inhabitants of both places having run away from their former homes, and are now or ought to be, looked on as outlaws, not having the fear of God and the Sheriff before their eyes. They issue, doubtless, that they are a most hardened set of wretches. I will further state that in Wisconsin, they are generally froze up about eleven months in the year, the inhabitants being all this time in a torpid state, and perfectly destitute. And, as for Iowa, the last news we had of them was fully confirms the worst fears. The news is that a horrible battle is now raging, and there is no knowing how many will be killed. It appears that the army of the Missourians, consisting of six private and a captain, have been attacked by the Iowa army near the boundary line, and that on meeting, one of the most unparalleled fights took place between them with snow balls; and when the express left it was doubtful which party would conquer. There was a suspension of hostilities in order that the belligerents might take a horn and warm their fingers. Before two to one on the Missourians on account of their having moccasins on, while the Iowans are barefoot. This is the only way that both parties will uphold the standard and honor of their country, as long as the liquor lasts, consisting of fifteen gallon keg of whiskey on the Iowan's side, and the same quantity on the Missourian's, together one gallon of number six.

25. Q. I take, what are the advantages and disadvantages of location in the West—and what part of those you have you candidly think presents on the whole the best opening for a New England mechanic whether professional, mercantile, mechanical, or agricultural, as to health, prosperity and general happiness? And would it be safe for one of generous feelings and liberal education to migrate thither in Subject would not get ready on that I am aware that autumn is the most auspicious.

A. This is important, all important. The greatest advantage in this country is plenty of cash, and the great disadvantage is want of it. And I say truly that the best place for you to settle is between the Rocky Mountains and the coast of the Pacific Ocean. That precise spot I will leave for you to select, and it would be perfectly safe in the farthest Indian Agency, or any other place of that sort, provided you went well armed, and gave the Indians plenty of tobacco and whiskey.

26. Q. I saw during the last summer a somewhat ambiguous account of a strange kind of vehicle, in which some 20 or 25 persons removed from Michigan to Iowa or Rock River—it was call Noah's Ark, and the Rock Western was propelled by horse power on your river—but it did not appear how it was propelled on land, or how it got from Boston in the month of March, into the Western waters. What do you know of the character, construction and cost of this strange craft?

A. As to the twenty-sixth question, I am at a loss how to answer it, but refer you to the aforesaid James L. Hayes for further information respecting this and the abolition of slavery. My own opinion is that it is one of the long and much talked of mammoths which we create to scare much talk. Little imagine in the history of this nation, that now very much reduced in size and more commonly known in the present day by the name of gophers.

27. Q. What portion of the year is the navigation of your Western rivers generally affected by drought, sand-bars, ice? Are there any small water craft which are propelled by steam? Do considerable vessels, such as are common to the Atlantic States, and moved by sails, ever ascend the Mississippi as far as St. Louis?

A. About twelve months in the year, or as least that is the case and I think for the whole of the year, (see letter of K. Jones) navigable as far as Oxville, though not so far navigable by nature. We intend to make it navigable as far as Dixville, though by law, notwithstanding it is perfectly dry in the summer, and frozen up in the winter, and be a law-loving people, it will no doubt be navigable when the Mississippi as far as Kilmarnock, further than I think it impossible to go. Considerable vessels do much by sales, inasmuch as our largest steamboats are frequently sold at Sheriff's sales. There are also many private sales, both of steamboats, keel and flat-boats, and also rafts from St. Louis and lower down.

28. Q. What mode of traveling in the West would be most convenient and economical, and also affect authentic information and observation to come in making a selection of a location in some of the great water courses, where I could witness the operations of navigation and commerce as at the East? The subscriber stoppages would not. I presume, future opportunity. Would a small boat? A single horse wagon, or a couple horse, be the best? [Are the people good

A. As to the twenty-eighth question. The best mode of traveling for you and alone, it being the cheapest, most convenient, and affording the best opportunity to examine the country. I would recommend St. Peters as a proper place to make inquiry respecting your contemplated navigation, it being the head of navigation, and it being best, I think, always to commence at the beginning, and I think I can satisfy you, you could build a steamboat and proceed down the river to Dixville. At St. Peters there is a dead ox and hog buried on between the whites and red-skins, for heads and whiskey, in exchange for skins and gumbo. You could travel by water in a single horse wagon, or on the backs or rivers with a jacks or horse, if you should swim well. And I would come by land, by all means come in a boat. The roads are horrible, there being no roads at all except the one in the history-book, which leads to death, and that's not travelled any here.
